

Abstract of the Disclosure

An acupuncture needle having a handle that causes vibrations in a needle shaft when the handle is rotated, for example, between a practitioner's digits—for example, one or more finger tips and a thumb of a practitioner's hand. The handle includes a specialized cross-sectional shape that causes the vibration during rotation thereof.